Among the benefits of Branch Banking ...

Your local bank is an essential link between your community and the whole banking world.

In remote areas, Canadians enjoy the same broad range of bank services, the same sense of security.

As communities develop, banking services are made available to meet new and growing needs.

Banking in Canada works in such a way that your local branch manager brings you all the resources, knowledge and experience of the bank he represents. It has branches throughout Canada and provides contacts the world over. The benefits of this branch banking system, developed to meet Canadian needs, are demonstrated every day by the quality and scope of your local banking service.

CWNE Trophy presented to editors at Wilkie Board of Trade annual meeting

Sixty-five members and visitors attended the annual meeting of the Wilkie and District Board of Trade held in the Rex Cafe banquet room recently. The meeting was also made the occasion of presentation of the Canadian Weekly Editor (Vancouver) trophy to E. N. Carter, co-publisher of the Wilkie Press. The Press was named winner of the award for excellence in editorial writing in competition with English language weekly newspapers across Canada.

The presentation was made by John Pinckney of Rosetown, president of the Saskatchewan Division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, on behalf of the magazine, "Weekly Editor", a Canadian trade journal published in the interests of the weekly press.

In making the presentation, Mr. Pinckney first commended the Board of Trade for its turnout at the meeting and its activeness during the past year.

Mr. Pinckney pointed out that the occasion of the Wilkie Press winning the editorial award is particularly creditable. It is the first time that the trophy is being held by a weekly in this province and also the first time won by a smaller circulation paper.

He spoke of the value of small weekly newspaper in a community, describing it to be a relative, almost personal essence in town life. The job of the weeklies, he said, is to quietly lay down a record of the events within a community—without glamour. Often the country editor is found working with inadequate equipment, inadequate help and very often inadequate support and acceptance. Irregardless of this, he comes up with a first class product.

Mayor W. J. Clements, in congratulating co-publishers Carter and Wilson, felt that the winning of a national award is only indicative of the service rendered to the community by the Press for many years.

In acknowledging the kind remarks of Editor Pinckney and also the honor done by the Board of Trade in arranging for the formal presentation of the trophy—which came as a complete surprise to the recipients, E. N. Carter said it appeared to him as much ado about nothing. The Canadian Weekly Editor had suggested the topic for the editorial and it happened to be one in which the competitor was deeply interested... the advantages of residing in a small town. Editorials come under the category of good, bad and indifferent, according to the viewpoint of the reader and it was not always the editors of The Wilkie Press were rewarded by a trophy—as witness a recent editorial which had seemed to arouse no little discussion and adverse criticism, which was all to the good as every person is entitled to an opinion. The editors of the Press were particularly pleased to have received this award, not only because it turned out to be something of an achievement, but more particularly because it brought no little publicity to the Town of Wilkie from coast to coast and had brought congratulations from many persons formerly resident here whose names were often remembered but whose addresses were not known. One such, "Curly" Scrimmes, now living in retirement in Regina, whose father had presented a curling cup to the Wilkie Bonspiel committee for open competition, which is still contested for, wrote "It took you a long time to do." In replying, we pointed out the fact really was it took a long time for others to recognize true merit.

Special guests at the meeting were: J. C. Brigham, C. Wheatley, H. Hopkinson, E. N. A. Sewell, C. M. Thompson, Jim Finley, all railroad officials; and J. Denhoff, editor of the Unity Courier-Herald; C. I. McIntosh, of the North Battleford News-Optimist; and R. Reid, of the Kindersley Clarion.

Two more federal grants for Sask.

OTTAWA. — The Hon. Paul Martin has revealed that two more federal health grants are being made available to Saskatchewan.

The Kipling Memorial hospital, Kipling, will receive $5,500 toward the cost of constructing a modern nurses' residence. The new building will provide complete living facilities for 11 nurses.

A similar grant of $3,250 goes to the Lucky Lake Union hospital, Lucky Lake, to provide for the building of a nine bed nurses' residence.

Andrenosem is science's answer to hemorrhage

By Jerry Klein

(Written especially for CPC)
An eighteenth century "cure" for nosebleed was to soak a linen rag in vinegar, burn it and then inhale the ashes. However, this wouldn't have helped the recent case of a 58-year-old woman who suffered terrible nose bleeds every day for week after week.

Despite repeated transfusions, the woman was becoming weaker. She was so worried about a massive, final hemorrhage that she was "unable to blow her nose for fear."

Then the woman was given daily doses of a new discovery called adrenosem. She took the drug for four weeks—and didn't have even one nosebleed during all that time.

The patient was but one of 77 who recently were given test doses of the bleeding preventive by Dr. Daniel A. Sherber of New Rochelle, N.Y. Reporting on these tests in the American Journal of Surgery, Dr. Sherber said that the new drug "appears superior to any similar material that is now available."

Dr. Sherber reported that in some surgical cases, adrenosem halted bleeding in only 20 minutes. He also told of a 55-year-old man who had been suffering constant pulmonary bleeding for six weeks without relief. Within 24 hours after taking the new drug, "all evidence of bleeding stopped" and there was hardly any recurrence for two months.

The potential, life-saving value of a drug which safely stops bleeding is made obvious by the fact that the U.S. has about 33 million medical cases a year in which loss of blood is a serious complication.

Doctors agree that there has been an ever-present need throughout history for a "systemic hemostat"—that is, a substance which would help keep our blood vessels from leaking.

This discoverer of adrenosem says that it stops bleeding without any of the usual disadvantages of such a drug: thickening the blood, disturbing heart action or rais-

Another ice age coming—year 251,955

The recent severe Canadian winters are leading up to another ice age but present-day Canadians—and their descendants for quite a few years—having nothing to worry about.

Professor Kenneth Hare, director of the McGill University weather observatory, said that Canadians will experience another ice age in the year 251,955, a quarter-million years from now.

Dr. Maxwell J. Dunbar, McGill's zoologist, said the peak in the warming-up cycle was passed during the 1930's.

"However, the change to a cooler climate will be very gradual and will actually be punctuated with minor warming up periods," he said.

"More severe winters in western Canada in recent years lend support to the theory that the peak in the warming-up cycle has been passed," Hare said. "Supporting evidence now may be discerned in eastern Canada—the present winter for example."

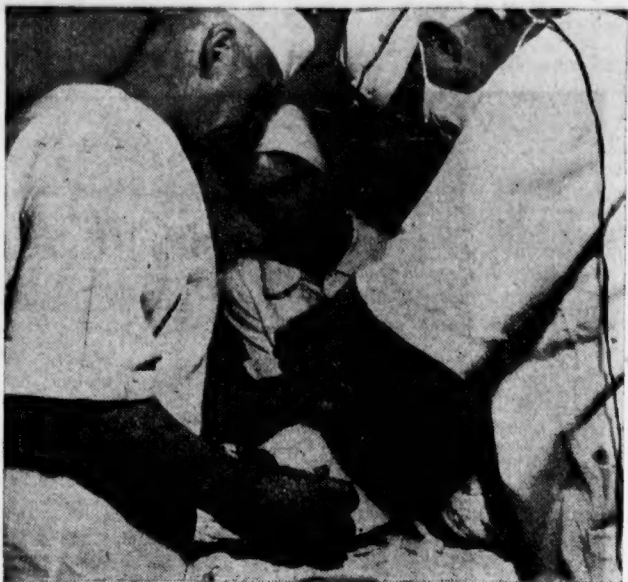

TRY AND STOP ME!

By BENNETT CERR

"A bunch of the germs were hitting it up
In a bronchial saloon.
Two bugs on the edge of the larynx
Were jazzing a hay-feverish tune.
While back of the teeth in a solo game,
Sat Dangerous Dan Kerchoo,
And watching his pulse
Was his queen of the waltz,
The lady that's known as Flu!"

"I take it for granted," said the personnel director, "that you and your wife have a joint checking account?" "No, sir, we have not," answered the new employee. "This is my second wife."

A banker with a wee bit of Scotch in his veins asked his wife, "My dear, I don't imagine you'd want to go to the opening of that new musical show without a new gown, would you?" "Certainly not," she snapped. "Just what I thought," beamed the banker. "So I only ordered one ticket." 3129

A tonsillectomy is performed in a Louisiana hospital on a patient who has been given the new drug adrenosem ing blood pressure.

Although it was introduced less than one year ago, more than 1,200 hospitals in 45 states are using it and almost 200,000 patients have received doses.

The bleeding preventive is being administered both before and after surgery, and especially in tonsil, prostate and bladder cases where bleeding is a major factor. Of course, operations aren't the only cause of serious loss of blood.

Sometimes the small blood vessels are ruptured by infections or improper x-rays. Adrenosem has proved its ability to conserve the life fluid in these cases, too. The internal bleeding which might be caused by the radiation sickness of an atomic war makes the discovery of adrenosem doubly significant.

Years ago, of course, doctors thought they actually benefited their patients by removing some of their blood. An eighteenth century French physician named Guy Patin, for example, once bled himself seven times trying to cure a cold in his head, and in the course of a few days he bled his son 20 times!

Today we know that to waste this precious fluid is to flirt with death. And substances such as adrenosem rightfully take credit for saving many a human life.

Weed control schools to be held in Saskatchewan Feb. 22 to March 17

REGINA—Weed control schools will be conducted at three points in Saskatchewan between February 22 and March 17, it was announced by R. E. McKenzie, director of the plant industry branch of the provincial department of agriculture.

In previous years weed control schools have been held alternately between Regina and Saskatoon, but due to increasing demands they have been extended to other centres this year.

The first school will be held in the assembly hall, Experimental Station, Swift Current, from February 22 to 24 inclusive. The Swift Current Station is co-operating with the department in arranging this course. The Saskatoon school will be held in Convocation Hall, University of Saskatchewan, on March 8, 9 and 10, and assistance will be given by the extension department of the university. The third school will be held in the City Hall chambers, Weyburn, on March 16 and 17. T. V. Beck, provincial weed specialist will be in charge of all three schools.

Subjects to be dealt with include: cultural and chemical weed control; identification; the Noxious Weeds Act; persistent perennial weed control; organization of district control programs, and machinery for weed control.

The purpose of the schools is to encourage better weed control throughout the province and to provide a training ground for municipal weed inspectors and supervisors, and interested farmers so that a better job of weed control can be accomplished.

The need for this type of training becomes apparent when it is realized that the annual loss in Saskatchewan, from weeds, is in excess of $50 million. Mr. McKenzie said, adding that thoroughly instructed municipal weed inspectors could become key men in helping to reduce this loss.

BALANCED DIET NORMAL HEALTH

Humans of all ages require a balanced diet to keep them in normal health and to maintain their body structure and functions. From the baby's carefully calculated formula to the protein-mineral-and-vitamin needs of adult and aged, the food we eat must supply the nutrients necessary to good health. Too much of one kind of food and not sufficient of another may cause malnutrition. Therefore, it is wise to keep to a balanced diet as suggested in Canada's Food Rules. Copies of these Rules are available free of charge from your local or provincial health department.

SHOPPING CENTRE

EDMONTON. — A $5,000,000 shopping centre with 45 stores is expected to open August 11.

L. G. Pugsley, general manager of Shoppers Park Westmount, Ltd., said the west-end project will employ 750 persons with a total annual payroll of more than $2,000,000.

In the field of education

Education and the community

(By Andrew Kapos, Sask. Adult Education Division)

Education is our business. Financed from our taxes it keeps us out of mischief while we are young and becomes a stern duty when we start raising our own children. Is there anyone who has not complained about the shortcomings of the educational set-up? But how many will lend a helping hand to bring education nearer to our ideals? In this province the educators have repeatedly invited the community at large to take part in educational planning. The door is open and Education Week is the time of welcome.

Several Canadian communities have demonstrated that with a little planning many people can participate in the educational endeavour.

Early in February, 1953, a planning committee was organized at Swift Current, Sask., which included representatives of the local schools, the Home and School Association, the Chamber of Commerce and the service and women's clubs. A program for the week was outlined and put into action. A daily bulletin was distributed in all homes by school children listing each day's activities. Here are the highlights:

Sample program

Monday — Many members of women's clubs gave house parties at which adult groups discussed the definition of a good citizen. The definitions agreed on were reported to the audience of a drama festival that night and broadcast over the radio.

Tuesday—Three hundred families received a questionnaire asking for personal views on the contribution of the home to citizenship education. Collected by Boy Scouts the same day, the answers were brought before the public by means of radio and public announcements.

Wednesday — Opening of a Handicraft Festival. The contributions of many national groups to the Canadian mosaic were spotlighted.

Thursday — Individual citizens were interviewed by their neighbors on the contribution the community should make to citizenship education. Opinions were summarized over the radio in the evening for listening groups whose conclusions were once more collected, summarized and brought before the public.

Friday—A panel consisting of parents, teachers and students discussed their related roles in the great educational task at a public meeting. Later, the audience was divided into small groups so that everybody could have their say. Ideas agreed upon were summarized and given press and radio publicity.

As a result, three or four sensible suggestions for educational improvements were found on which the community agreed and the authorities could proceed to implement these suggestions.

The emphasis was on citizenship education. Other aspects of education can be brought into focus just as well, and different approaches can be chosen. A community may concentrate on visits to its schools and fact finding, and then proceed to discuss needed improvements.

Swimming good activity for non-athlete anxious to keep in shape

Swimming is a wonderful activity for those interested in keeping physically fit. It gives all the muscles of the body a workout and, since there is no competitive angle to it, the individual is not likely to do too much—as he would perhaps in some competitive types of games—even though he is only playing to keep fit. For example: if you are playing tennis it is very difficult to stop from really going all out to win the match. This is especially true of anyone with a keen competitive spirit. This is an important point if the person anxious to keep fit is not as young as he used to be and accordingly wants to get regular exercise without taking any chance of doing too much.

If any real value is to be gained from swimming, the individual should have at least three good work-outs per week. If he has any less swimming than this it won't do him much good from the fitness viewpoint.

Drink water daily

The medical profession claims that the average person doesn't drink anywhere near enough water and because of this the kidneys, circulation and other functions of the body don't do a 100 percent job. So, take a tip and drink lots of water. Try to drink at least six glasses of water every day. Don't drink immediately before or directly after exercise and don't drink too much during meals. Drink most of your water during other periods of the day. Finally, remember that several glasses of water first thing in the morning is a very good idea.

Make sure you get enough sleep

If anyone needs sleep it's a young athlete who is trying to hit the headlines! While you are sleeping you are storing up that extra-energy you need so much. Besides this, the tissue you have broken down during the day is renewed and revitalized when you are sleeping. Then, too, your heart and other important organs of the body get a chance to take things a little easier which helps them come back strong for that extra hard sports competition. If you don't get sufficient sleep you become a "sucker" for cold germs. They love to hit you when your resistance is low and lack of sleep really lowers it! Remember, it's regular sleep that counts. The idea that one long period of sleep makes up for several nights of too little sleep is all wrong. So, fellows, take a tip and protect your sports efficiency by getting enough sleep—at least eight hours every night.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

ST. PAUL TOLD OF RICHES CHRISTIANS POSSESS

"Poor, yet making many rich"; that is how Saint Paul describes the condition and privilege of the early Christian believers, many of whom were evidently quite poor in worldly goods. "As having nothing," he adds, "and yet possessing all things."

It was not a chance remark or a sentimental idea on the apostle's part, but an expression of his settled philosophy concerning the Christian possessions. And also, in the First Epistle to the Corinthians, he reasoned more directly concerning the Christians' wealth.

The Christian belongs to Christ. Christ is God's. All things belong to God. Therefore, he writes to the Corinthians, "All things are yours."

The cynic may protest that this sort of wealth will not pay the rent. There is a point in the criticism, but it might also be pointed out that Paul was no visionary dreamer regarding the practical affairs of life.

He worked at his trade as tent-maker to support himself, and he insisted that everybody else should work. He would have no loafers in the Christian community.

Further, if he admonished Christians to "bear one another's burdens," he qualified this with the declaration that "every man shall bear his own burden." There never has been, even to our time, a clearer statement of social and individual responsibility.

His words forcefully bring to the attention that there is a reality of inner wealth and richness of life for which no amount of worldly material wealth or possession can compensate.

One who has missed the Christian's spiritual possessions has missed the greatest treasure that God and life have to offer.

Alberta pensioners' treatment

The pensioners' dental treatment service has been operating in Alberta since June, 1947, but still hundreds of people in the province know little of the services it offers persons of advanced age and small income.

Under the special plan which is offered by the provincial government and the dental profession in Alberta, dental treatment is free to more than 35,000 Albertans including all pensioners of the provincial government, the blind and their wives and dependent children, widows, those receiving mothers' allowances and to old age security pensioners on a means test.

The service, in all its phases, is operated under a monthly per capita grant from the provincial government. The dentists carry out dental treatment under a schedule of reduced fees.

No other plan of this kind is operated on the North American continent.

From the patients' point of view, the availability of the service is extremely simple. The administrative office of the Alberta Dental Association is supplied by the government with a list of names and addresses of those entitled to treatment.

The list is adjusted monthly. A patient merely applies to the dentist of his choice, who notes needs on a chart, and proceeds with treatment as soon as authorization has been granted. In case of an emergency arising, no authorization is required prior to treatment.

More deer than people

PORT WASHINGTON, Pender Island, B.C. — On the British Columbia Gulf Islands there are more deer than people and tall fences are needed to keep them out of gardens.

They can soar easily over a seven-foot fence and wriggle through any small gap. The deer swim from island to island as the mood strikes them.

Few hunters visit Pender island due to lack of accommodation so the animals find they can lead a relatively carefree existence here.

The name "gopher" is used to include various kinds of ground squirrel, prairie dog, pouched rat and land tortoise of the southern United States.

Recommendations on grain issued in pamphlet form

REGINA.—Recommendations of grain varieties recently announced for 1955 in Saskatchewan have been issued in pamphlet form by the Saskatchewan Advisory Council on Grain Crops. Copies of the report are now available from district Agricultural Representatives, the provincial department of Agriculture, the University of Saskatchewan extension department and from federal experimental farms.

R. E. McKenzie, director of the Plant Industry Branch, Saskatchewan department of Agriculture, urged farmers to refer to the pamphlet before purchasing seed grain this spring.

Varieties of each of the cereal grains are recommended for 20 zones in the province on the basis of extensive tests carried out during the past year at many points in Saskatchewan. A map of cereal variety zones appears in the 1955 pamphlet and provides a guidance to recommend seed.

Thatcher recommended

The new chart indicates that Thatcher remains a recommended bread wheat in all zones, although the new variety, Selkirk, which is resistant to type 15B rust is recommended in six out of the 20 zones.

Lake, a new variety of bread wheat developed at the Scott Experimental station is recommended in eight zones located in the west and northwest part of the province. This variety is not resistant to 15B rust but its good yield and other desirable qualities makes it suitable for those zones.

The advisory council points out that due to continued rust losses in the southeastern parts of the province, durum wheat should not be grown in that area until a satisfactory rust resistant variety is available.

Two new varieties of oats, Rodney and Garry, both of which are highly resistant to stem rust, are recommended for seeding in two northeastern zones, while Eagle oats have also been recommended in two zones.

Main change

In barley, the main change is the addition of Husky to four northern and western zones. On the other hand, Plush barley has been removed as a recommended variety. In flax, the new early variety Marine, is recommended for three zones in northeastern Saskatchewan.

The pamphlet points out that although rape seed has assumed a more important place as an oil seed crop in northern areas, it should be grown only under contract to insure disposal of the crop. Golden, a new variety of rape seed, is recommended for the first time due to its good yield and higher oil content than Argentine or Polish.

New varieties of cereal grains which are being tested against the recommended varieties in many locations throughout the province, are: Nugget (durum) wheat; Abegweit oats; Gateway, Wolfe and Vantmore barley and Raja and B 5128 flax.

Present crop insurance views

A two-fold insurance plan was recommended by the Manitoba Federation of Agriculture and Cooperation in a brief to the Manitoba Crop Insurance Commission in Winnipeg.

The brief was presented by J. D. Wilton of Carman, M.F.A.C. president. It suggested that an overall type of coverage be provided for the province based on an actuarially sound area of qualification and awards. This coverage should be financed by a compulsory one percent levy on all grains delivered.

Additional voluntary coverage was recommended for those who desired it. It was suggested that this additional coverage be available on an individual basis with weighted premiums based on the long term average yield of the area.

The brief also suggested that the provincial government be responsible for administration costs of such a program for the initial years.

It was emphasized that the M.F.A.C. wants PFAA continued until such time as a more adequate program has been worked out. The brief expressed doubt that PFAA can be adequately amended.

It is said prematurely born infants, when they become adults, are much better looking than the average person. Also that their chances of success are better. As are their chances of living a long time. Winston Churchill, who recently celebrated his 80th birthday, was a prematurely born baby. He weighed only three pounds at birth.

Hereditary baldness

Not all baldness is hereditary but most of it is. When a young woman marries a bald or even partially bald man, the chances are very good the male children of the couple will be bald in their adult years. Also the daughter of a baldheaded man often passes the characteristic to her children.

Aid for complexion

Standing on the head for a few minutes daily is very good for the complexion. That is what Mrs. Elizabeth Graham Lewis (Elizabeth Arden) is reported to have said. So, sir, if your wife wants to achieve a schoolgirl complexion, why not suggest to her that she stand on her head for five minutes daily. Incidentally, she may help to do that. Only one woman in 50 can stand on her head without assistance.

Refusing to grow old

These present-day grandmas are really something. I know of a grandma who has four daughters and three grandchildren. This grandma is an unusual career woman. She is a riveter in an aircraft plant. She is also quite a speed girl on the highways. Driving an automobile is not exciting enough for her, she rides a motorcycle.

Color psychology

Most women with a reputation for being smart dressers prefer black or navy blue evening gowns. The experts on color psychology, as recently reported here, claim pink is the most powerful of all colors in the matter of male attraction. That a woman wearing a pink evening gown at a dance will never be a wallflower and stands an excellent chance of becoming the belle of the ball. This brings forcibly to mind the dispatch reporting that at a recent ball Jane Russell, the cinema queen, wore "a shocking pink evening gown."

Record of champions

Joe Louis, the old Brown Bomber, himself, in person. Joe was a real fighting champion. He defended his world's heavyweight title 25 times. Jack Dempsey defended his title against six challengers. Tunney defended his title against two challengers and then quit the ring.

Historic note

What king of France introduced height building shoes? Such is an inquiry received from a Boston shoe salesman. It was probably Louis XV who had heels put on his shoes so he could be taller than a female he admired. Incidentally, Louis XV, who lived at Versailles, had Mme Du Barry and Mme. Pompadour for girl friends but even so was never content. He once said: "What would life be without coffee; but then, what is life even with coffee?"

Fair share of credit

In referring to victories of their fighters some fight managers use "we" as in "we knocked him out in the fourth." When I hear a fight manager talk that way I am reminded of the fable of the ant and the elephant. This pair crossed a small bridge together. When they reached the other side the ant said, "We sure did shake that thing."

Eggs by the yard

In Korea, white is the color used for mourning. Men keep their hats on in the house. Eggs are not sold by the dozen but by the yard. National dish of Korea is something called Kimchi. It is a mixture of cabbage, turnips, onions, dry fish, ginger and the world's hottest pepper.

Arctic night wonderful says stewardess

WINNIPEG.—Lis Eskesen has travelled through every major city in Europe, Africa and the Orient. But the attractive blonde stewardess with the Scandinavian Airlines System prefers flying over the Arctic.

"It's wonderful to look out into the Arctic night, clear and bright with millions of stars and moonlight as bright as day," she said in an interview here.

Lis is on the Winnipeg-Copenhagen leg of the trans-polar route from Los Angeles to Copenhagen.

She said her favorite country in Europe is Switzerland "for skiing, of course" and Rome is her favorite city "for its mystery."

Skiing is her favorite recreation, and during her Winnipeg stop-overs she enjoys her next-favorite—skating.

Miss Eskesen grew up in a dairy farming area at Aalborg in northern Denmark, where her father teaches school.

She was on the inaugural flight of the airlines' trans-polar flight last November.

Try adding two tablespoons of milk to a pound of ground beef when you are making hamburgers; they'll come out juicy! Top the hamburgers with a mixture of chili sauce, pickle relish and prepared horseradish and serve on toasted buttered buns.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Those we love best

—By BASCOM H. BIGGERS III

IT WASN'T the first argument Laura and James had. During five years of marriage there had been many. But it was the worst one because it concerned something close to both of them. It was about the house.

"I can get a good price for it," said James.

"I don't care how much you can get for it," said Laura. "This is our home and I don't want to give it up."

"Look, Laura, I love the place too," he said, "but with the money we make on it we can have one twice as nice and money to boot."

"No, I don't care what you say, James. No. I don't want to sell. My friends are here and everything connected with the first years of our marriage. I won't ever agree to sell."

He tried to reason with her, but before they knew it they were fussing violently with one another and saying all manner of ugly things.

"You can have the house and everything that goes with it," shouted James in a fit of temper. "I'm leaving and I'm not coming back."

He went to their room, threw some things into a suitcase and stormed out of the house. He started the car with a roar and shot out of the drive.

A. Carlson, fifty miles away, he got himself a room in a hotel. He had cooled off some, but he was still determined that he would not go back. She was being unreasonable about the whole business, and he would just teach her a lesson. It wasn't every day that a man got a chance to make a good business deal, but Laura was too sentimental to realize it.

Besides he was getting a little tired of being married. It was the same old thing day in and day out. Laura was unreasonable and could never see his way. A man got tired of being tied down.

That night about twelve o'clock he was awakened by a pounding on his door. For several minutes he couldn't remember where he was. He got up sleepily and opened the door. His next door neighbor, Fred, rushed in wide-eyed and dishevelled.

"Good heavens, James, I've looked all over town for you. Get your clothes on at once. Laura's in the hospital. Her appendix burst and we had to rush her to the hospital."

"Oh no," said James sinking down on the bed, his face white. "Is she—will she—"

"I don't know. The doctor says she has a fifty-fifty chance. She's been calling for you. They were taking her into the operating room when I left. Come on, man, snap out of it and get your clothes on. You've a fifty-mile drive ahead of you."

"Oh, my poor darling," said James. "If anything happens to her I'll never forgive myself."

James dressed in a trance. He scarcely remembered Fred leading him out of the hotel and to the car. All he could think of was Laura, dear, sweet little Laura close to death. And he had quarrelled with her, run off and left her. He was missing when she needed him most.

He and Fred did not talk all the way back. Fred drove rapidly and James sat staring at the highway that dipped ahead into darkness, remembering all the happiness Laura had brought him.

He saw her excited face the day he gave her the engagement ring that was small but wonderful to her. He saw her on their wedding day, tears bright in her eyes. He remembered the day the doctor told them they could have no children and how it was Laura who held up best. She'd smiled at him and said, "Never mind, darling. We can adopt some, and we'll always have each other."

When he'd lost his job Laura hadn't fussed or cried or gotten upset. She'd hugged him and said, "Don't worry, dear. It's only for a little while. You'll get another one even better. We'll get along somehow." And they did, all through Laura's effort. In every dark moment Laura had been there to brighten the way and encourage him. If he should lose her now—Tears dimmed his vision.

And then there were the million and one little things that she was always doing, things that he didn't even really notice. Having his fishing equipment ready when he even suggested going on a trip; tending him when he had the slightest cold; never forgetting his birthday; smiling and making it all right when he forgot. This was the Laura he knew and loved, the Laura he could not live without. And because of one foolish argument he had thought of leaving her. What a fool he was.

Even about the house she was right. They both loved the place. They had poured their hearts into it, working to make it a home. And what was a little profit in comparison to things you cherished and loved. How stupid he had been.

"We're here," Fred said, and

You were there--Through your Red Cross

SECURE in the arms of a Red Cross volunteer is a young survivor of "Hurricane Hazel," which brought death and destruction to Central Ontario October 15, 1954. Yes, you were there—through your Red Cross. You helped the victims of the floods in B.C. in 1948, Manitoba in 1950, Holland in 1953 and Ontario in 1954. In hundreds of other smaller disasters, your helping hand was ever ready through your Red Cross.

During 1954 in Saskatchewan alone, aid was given to the victims of 118 fires in which 121 families (531 persons) were assisted with over 5,000 items of bedding and clothing. Records indicate that one out of every nineteen people in Saskatchewan received direct assistance through the many services rendered by your Red Cross last year. Such services include: Outpost Hospitals, Nursing Stations, Veterans assistance, Sickness and Civilian Welfare, Mother's Milk Bank, Swimming and Water Safety Programme, Enquiry service and the B.T.S. Each time the Red Cross swings into action to ease the suffering of those in distress, it is able to do so because of the generous support given by Canadians from Coast to Coast.

James snapped back to the present.

In the corridor of the hospital they met the doctor.

"Doctor—is Laura—?"

"She's going to be all right," he said patting James' shoulder. "Thank God!" said James. "May I see her?"

"She's sleeping now, but you may look in if you'll be very quiet."

Standing in the doorway looking down at the sleeping figure of Laura, James realized how small and fragile she was. And yet she was such a pillar of strength to him. How he loved her!

Why, oh, why he wondered, must we almost lose those we love best before we realize how much they mean to us. Help me to remember every day that tomorrow I may not have her, and then I may love her a fraction of what she deserves.

She opened her eyes then, saw him and smiled, and he knew she understood and that everything was all right.

Alberta arranges Canada film tour series

Albertans as well as other Canadians will be able to view a complete series of one-hour film programs on all the Canadian provinces and the north through a new plan sponsored by the Alberta Department of Economic Affairs, the Alberta Travel Bureau, and the National Film Board.

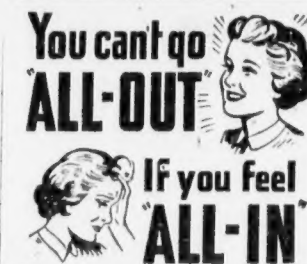

The series is a set of 11 one-hour film shows, each featuring a particular province. The series has been made up as a "Film Tour of Canada" so that viewers may see the whole of Canada during 11 weekly shows.

Contents of the Alberta program includes "Wardens of Waterton," and "Rocky Mountain Trout," two National Film Board productions on Alberta, and "Alberta Vacation" and "Gift of the Glaciers" both produced by the Film and Photographic Branch of the Alberta Government. Programs on other Canadian provinces will be made up similarly, consisting of N.F.B. films and provincial government films.

Initial Alberta distribution of the "Film Tour of Canada" series is being made from the Edmonton office of the National Film Board but eventually the series will be available to all film depots and libraries. N.F.B. offices in other provinces will be distributing the series as well.

Purpose of the series is to present a pictorial view of Canada of educational value to the public. It is hoped, as well, that showing of the film will encourage inter-provincial travel.

To enable the Jubilee Committee to prepare and distribute the scrolls, your co-operation is requested. Completed applications must be received by August 1, in order that distribution may begin by August 22.

★ DISTRIBUTION OF SCROLLS

The majority of scrolls will be mailed from the Jubilee office to the applicant, but communities wishing to be responsible for distribution at special presentation ceremonies, even prior to August 22, are requested to prepare a list of eligible citizens and ensure that application forms are submitted well in advance of the date scrolls are required.

★ SENIOR CITIZEN'S DAY

A Senior Citizen's Day has been added to the agenda of official dates for the Jubilee Year. September 10th has been set, though communities throughout the province will be holding special Senior Citizen Scroll presentations to coincide with their own Jubilee activities.

★ HONORING OUR PIONEERS

They, who homesteaded in Alberta at the turn of the century, or who pioneered in industry—they, who saw the birth of a great province and contributed to 50 years of progress—it is they who are worthy of a special and personal commendation by the rest of us—their relatives, friends and neighbors. Whatever the date, wherever the presentation of a Senior Citizen Scroll—in a home or at a public gathering, join in our Golden Jubilee Celebrations by adding your personal congratulations.
